swedish medieval marriage formation was a process written down in the secular laws however it started to evolve because of the interaction with the medieval catholic marriage doctrine which focused on mutual words of consent although first the canon law of marriage and then lutheran marriage dogma influenced the swedish development the perception of marriage as a process consisting of several legal acts and accompanied by property transfers proved remarkably resilient the pragmatic and rural character of sweden contributed to this despite pressure from canon and roman law and attempts at bringing marriage formation under ecclesiastical control marrying by stages was in itself unremarkable in europe but the legal foundation and formality make medieval and sixteenth century sweden a unique case study

Josephine Roche 1886–1976 was a progressive activist, New Deal policymaker, and businesswoman. As a pro-labor and feminist member of Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, she shaped the founding legislation of the U.S. welfare state and generated the national conversation about health care policy that Americans are still having today. In this gripping biography, Robyn Muncy offers Roche's persistent progressivism as evidence for surprising continuities among the Progressive Era, the New Deal, and the Great Society. Muncy explains that Roche became the second-highest-ranking woman in the New Deal government after running a Colorado coal company in partnership with coal miners themselves. Once in office, Roche developed a national health plan that was stymied by World War II but enacted piecemeal during the postwar period, culminating in Medicare and Medicaid in the 1960s. By then, Roche directed the United Mine Workers of America welfare and retirement fund, an initiative aimed at bolstering the labor movement, advancing managed health care, and reorganizing medicine to facilitate national health insurance. One of Roche's unrealized dreams, in relentless reformer Muncy, uses Roche's dramatic life story from her stint as Denver's first policewoman in 1912 to her fight against a murderous labor union official in 1972 as a unique vantage point from which to examine the challenges that women have faced in public life and to reassess the meaning and trajectory of progressive reform.

Winner of the 2013 Donald Hall Prize in Poetry, The Dottery is a tale of dotters before they are born. In this series of prose poems, you meet their would-be mutters, the buoys they will know, their inner warden, and the mutterers who cannot have them. The Dottery itself is a sort of pre-purgatory, a finishing school for the fetal feminine. The five sections correspond to the conceptual set-ups interrogated within. In Wound, the dottery is described as are its inhabitants and their difficulties. In Dual, a gender binary is introduced and hopefully eviscerated. Triage establishes the issues that plague both the dotters and those who would bring them out into the world. Specifically, into the idea of America. I m erica and I can prefer a hummer to the rose parade. In Fear, failed dotters out in the world are described in obit fashion. Finally, in Thief, one mutterer recounts how she stole her dotter, a snatched piece to become a mutter, and chronicles both her desires and regrets.

He always is very, very close to the camera, and he is terribly inspiring. I don't know what his magic is, but it is something that makes you want to give everything you have. He has respect for actors and for everybody. A bad director very often doesn't have that respect. Liv Ullmann's words about Ingmar Bergman hint at the consummate director: he was one who knew the business, the strengths and weaknesses of actors and crews, the arrangement of the set, the framing of the camera, and all other particulars of the fine art of directing. This work presents Bergman's life and work, beginning with his youth in Uppsala, Sweden, and covering his formative years, his development as an artist, and his career as a world-renowned director. A brief synopsis for each of Bergman's films is provided, with such information as producer, screenwriter, cinematographer, editor, art director, music, sound, credits, running time, casts, Bergman's own comments, and the reactions of critics.

Excerpts from criticism of the works of novelists, poets, playwrights, short story writers, and other creative writers who lived between 1800 and 1900, from the first published critical appraisals to current evaluations.
